TEMPLE TRAGEDY

7 DEAD AFTER SUNDAY MORNING SHOOTING IN WISCONSIN HOUSE OF WORSHIP

Chicago Tribune

Seven people were dead in a shooting Sunday morning at a Sikh temple in suburban Milwaukee, including the suspected gunman, and three others were wounded, including a veteran police officer, authorities said.

Officers who swept the Sikh Temple of Wisconsin in Oak Creek found four people dead inside the building and three people dead outside, police said.

At an afternoon press conference, Oak Creek Police Chief John Edwards clarified the timing of the shooting. He said police officers had responded to the 9-1-1 calls that came in around 10:25 a.m. and were tending to a victim they found outside the temple when one officer was "ambushed" by the suspect and shot multiple times. The officer is recovering, he said.

Another officer then fired at that suspect, fatally striking him. Greenfield Police Chief Bradley Wentlandt, who was helping the investigation, reiterated that police believe this suspect was the only shooter at the scene, but the investigation was ongoing.

The officers' response "stopped a tragic event that could have been a lot worse," Edwards said, calling the officers "heroic."

Edwards said authorities have spent the hours since the shooting checking the temple and the surrounding area to ensure there weren't additional shooters, because of the initial conflicting reports that seemed to indicate there was more than one gunman.

Calling it a "domestic terrorism-type" case, Edwards said the FBI and ATF also were investigating.

Edwards declined to describe the shooter or speculate on motive and said he did not have details on the total number of people inside the temple at the time of the attack. He confirmed that authorities found weapons on the scene but declined to say how many or what kind.

When asked why police took some time to get inside the building, Edwards said officers had to act cautiously, with the expectation that there may be more than one shooter.

Jaspreet Singh, 16, of Oak Creek said her mother hid in a pantry with other women as the shooting started. She called Singh's cousin and whispered into the cellphone to tell her to stay away from the temple before hurriedly hanging up.

Her mother was safe inside a bowling alley across the street, which police and emergency relief workers were using as a staging area.

"It's really scary," Singh said. "[The temple] is a place that's so peaceful."

Among those wounded was the president of the temple, Satwant Kaleka, the Milwaukee Journal Sentinel reported.

FACTS AND FIGURES

The Sikh Temple of Wisconsin is located in the suburb of Oak Creek. Following are some facts about the temple and the Sikh religion. REUTERS

» The Sikh Temple of Wisconsin was founded in 1997 with a community of 20 to 25 families, according to its website. It currently has 350 to 400 people in its congregation.

» The congregation started in rental facilities in Milwaukee and established its first dedicated facility in 1999. It later bought 13 acres of land in Oak Creek and broke ground on the current temple in 2006.

» Sikhism was founded in the 15th century in Punjab, an area straddling the border between Pakistan and India, by Guru Nanak Dev and has had 10 successive gurus.

» It is the fifth-largest organized religion in the world with more than 30 million followers. The Sikh place of worship is called a gurudwara and can be identified by tall flagpoles carrying the Sikh flag. The most revered site is the Golden Temple at Amritsar in India.

» There are an estimated 250,000 to 500,000 Sikhs in the U.S.

Taking offense goes for gold

Stephen Markley

redevye@tribune.com
@stephenmarkley

The Olympics has its dull moments, but nothing could top the dullness of the summer events currently upstaging the Olympics at every turn. I refer, of course, to the Umbrage Games.

People love taking offense, and this summer we've had two telling examples of Umbrage Gone Wild. Recently, Chick-fil-A President Dan Cathy said something moronic, and we all had to get incensed about his homophobia. Then Mayor Emanuel hinted he wants to ban Chick-fil-A from Chicago, and we had to get upset about freedom of expression. Earlier, Daniel Tosh made a rape joke, and we had to get offended. Then, as a guy who makes jokes in print and believes nothing is off-limits in comedy, I had to get offended at the offense.

I find all of this totally exhausting, and I've decided to solve it all in this column.

Dan Cathy: You are an idiot. Boycotting your chicken will be the easiest boycott I've ever participated in. It's like boycotting a company that manufacturers spiked urethra-rods: "Oh, good, I was already doing that."

Mayors who support gay rights: Dan Cathy is an idiot, but you can't start banning companies and institutions run by people who say stupid stuff. Otherwise, we could never have churches, synagogues or mosques in city limits because those people are telling everyone there's a magic man in the sky making bizarre homophobic rules and looking inside their brains 24 hours a day. (Yeah, I went there!)

Umbrage!

Not-comedians: Yes, rape can be funny. It can be really funny. Lindy West of Jezebel thankfully made this point by explaining why Tosh's joke bombed, then pointed out her four favorite rape jokes (which incidentally included Chicago comedian and casual friend of mine Ever Mainard; check out her eight-minute rape-and-race joke and try not to laugh).

Comedians: Just because you have a microphone on a stage doesn't make you impervious to sucking. You can't just push the envelope; you have to actually stamp it and mail it somewhere clever. Tosh's only offense is that he's not funny; that his shtick as a smirking, entitled white heterosexual male who's utterly clueless to his societal privilege is as stale as it is ancient. (I might be the only one who thinks this extends to his show, which is like watching Andrew Dice Clay host "America's Funniest Home Videos" updated for the YouTube age.) Yet this back-and-forth of taking offense, all this endless outrage at what essentially amounts to people popping off at the mouth, not counting to 10 before they speak, is so totally useless. If you're a person who makes a living in the public sphere during the Twitter age, chances are you will either unintentionally say something dumb or voice an opinion not in accord with the majority cultural ethos. Freaking out about every instance of this represents a massive waste of our time.

Kind of like going to church, "Tosh.0" or making jokes about the Polish—those lousy, hairy Pollock freaks.

Cupcake to go?

By Lisa Arnett

REDEYE

Thanks to the popularity of cupcake shops, you can buy a hand-held sweet treat in any number of neighborhoods. But now, you'll be able to grab one at any hour of the day, thanks to a 24-hour cupcake ATM from Gold Coast bakery Sprinkles. Here's a by-the-numbers breakdown of what to expect.

LMARNETT@TRIBUNE.COM | @REDEYEEATS

11 The time the cupcake ATM began operation Saturday morning at 50 E. Walton St.

$4 The price of one cupcake.

12 The machine will be randomly stocked with Willy Wonka-inspired "golden ticket" coupons for a dozen free cupcakes.

12-15

The number of cupcake flavors available from the ATM on a daily basis. Inventory will mirror the flavors stocked at the store, which rotate daily and include one or two seasonal flavors, store supervisor Laura Potter said.

500 The maximum number of cupcakes the machine can hold at one time.

0 The number of dollar bills the ATM will accept. Credit cards only, please.

3 The number of coming-soon cupcake ATMs planned at Sprinkles locations in Dallas, Houston and Washington, D.C.

Incoming! NASA prepares for Mars rover landing

6 PASADENA, Calif. The Mars rover Curiosity, on a quest for signs the Red Planet once hosted ingredients for life, streaked into the home stretch of its eight-month voyage Sunday nearing a make-or-break landing attempt that NASA calls one of its toughest feats of robotic exploration.

Curiosity, the first full-fledged mobile science laboratory sent to a distant world, was scheduled to touch down inside a vast, ancient impact crater late Sunday.

Mission control engineers at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory near L.A. acknowledge that delivering the one-ton, six-wheeled, nuclear-powered vehicle in one piece is a highly risky proposition, with zero margin for error.

WEATHER REPORT

Flight controllers anticipate clear and calm conditions for touchdown, slated to occur in the Martian afternoon. There may be some haze in the planet's pink skies from ice clouds, typical for this time of year, with temperatures at about 10 degrees Fahrenheit.

But just 12 hours away from Curiosity's rendezvous with Mars, JPL's team said the spacecraft and its systems were functioning flawlessly, and forecasts called for favorable Martian weather over the landing zone. Engineers said they were hopeful the rover, the size of a small sports car, will land as planned.

SEX GAMES

Does abstinence make a better athlete? Scientists and sportsmen still aren't sure

Reuters

LONDON The ancient Greeks believed athletes should avoid sex before sport, but modern Olympians and scientists are torn over the merits of pre-competition coitus and whether abstinence enhances performance. For years coaches and athletes have practiced abstinence the night or even weeks before a big event. Don't count Kelvin Morris among them, though. The Chicago Rush linebacker said he's never consciously abstained from sex before a game, adding he doesn't believe doing so would affect his performance.

Athletes' approaches on the practice differ, of course. Morris' teammate Terrance Turner said he has refrained from coitus before a game.

"I do it for performance reasons, also just the fact that I try to abstain as much as I can," the wide receiver said. "I know a lot of people, that's absolutely the reason why they abstain before a game."

Boxer Muhammad Ali reportedly went without sex for six weeks before a big fight. His daughter Laila Ali, also a boxer, once told Sports Illustrated that boxers who want to be successful follow that practice as well.

Experts say the long-standing "no sex before sport" myth has yet to be explored fully, however. Most research has been based on the physiological impact and, so far, having sex has not been found to reduce physical strength, power or endurance.

"When we test people in the lab, we are examining 'tests of performance' but in competition, psychology very likely plays a much more important role," said Ian Shrier, a professor in the department of family medicine at McGill University in Canada.

"Those who claim it decreases performance usually say it is because it decreases focus or aggression or tension. There are no studies that have examined this."

A review of scientific studies on the issue published in the Clinical Journal of Sport Medicine suggested sex the night before competition has no effect on physiological test results.

TO HOOK UP OR NOT?

RedEye asked Chicago athletes for their thoughts on the relationship between sex and sports, and whether they abstain from sex before competing.

Terrance Turner

25, Chicago Rush wide receiver

"For sure, I definitely have [abstained from sex before competition]. I know I have before a game plenty of times just to build up my testosterone levels. Also, before the NFL combine I abstained from it."

“Those who claim it decreases performance usually say it is because it decreases focus or aggression or tension. There are no studies that have examined this.”

—Ian Shrier, a professor in the department of family medicine at McGill University in Canada

In one study, 14 married male former athletes were given a maximum-effort grip strength test the morning after coitus, and the same test after at least six days without sex. The results showed neither strength nor endurance of the flexing muscles was adversely affected by sex the previous night.

A follow-up to this study was conducted by researchers at Colorado State University on 10 fit, married men ages 18-45. In their tests for grip strength, balance, lateral movement, reaction time, aerobic power, and VO<sub>2</sub> max—a measure of oxygen efficiency—sex appeared to make no difference.

A third study conducted in 1995 found having sex 12 hours prior to a fitness test had no significant effects on maximal aerobic power, oxygen pulse or blood pressure.

A theory that sexual frustration makes people more aggressive, and that ejaculation saps testosterone—an athletic performance-related hormone—from the body, has yet to be scientifically proven.

Martin Milton, an expert in psychotherapeutic and counseling psychology at the University of Surrey in the United Kingdom, said the effect of sex would depend on who's doing it, how often, for how long and in what way.

“If it's ‘up all night swinging from the rafters’ type sex we're talking about, then obviously the athlete is not going to be getting enough sleep or rest and their mind isn't on the job,” he said. REDEYE CONTRIBUTED TO THIS REPORT.

Olympic athletes no doubt are focused on winning, but they have sex on the brain, too.

UNITED STATES

The blogs have been buzzing over Ryan Lochte's potential girlfriend, R&B singer and VH1 reality star K. Michelle, and he's also been linked to Australian swimmer Blair Evans. But alas, he belongs to no one, according to Lochte's mother. “He goes out on one-night stands. He's not able to give fully to a relationship because he's always on the go,” Ike Lochte told NBC's today.com.

ITALY

Fans in Italy have been fascinated by Federica Pellegrini, who won gold in the 200-meter freestyle in 2008. Her boyfriend, fellow Italian swimmer Filippo Magnini, told magazine Chi they would avoid sex before Pellegrini's London races. Pellegrini, 23, who once appeared naked and painted in gold on the cover of Vogue, was not so sure. “Abstinence!” she said. “Are you mad?”

AUSTRALIA

The Australian team hit the headlines when its committee decided shooter Russell Mark could not share a room in the athletes' village with his wife and fellow shooting competitor Lauryn Mark. Mark, a six-time Olympian and double trap gold medallist in the 1996 Atlanta Games, said he was planning to sneak off at night to see his wife.

Danny Downes

26, UFC fighter

“Seeing that I'm a responsible Irish Catholic boy raised on the South Side of Chicago, I have no knowledge of such a conundrum. I am getting married [Aug. 4], though, so it may soon become an issue. From all the scientific evidence I have seen, the no sex before competition because ‘it will make your legs weak’ is pure myth. Despite this, I would still attempt to avoid coitus at least one hour before a fight.”

Kelvin Morris

29, Chicago Rush linebacker

“It's a tough topic to discuss, to be honest. It's not something that I've really ever thought about, especially when dealing with sports. Everybody's body wears differently.”

Fire player in his 20s

“There is a personal preference where people feel comfortable and some people are superstitious about certain things. So I'm sure some people do and some people could really care less and don't regard it as important or necessary to think about. I think it's important to not over-exert yourself before a game—so take that however you'd like to.”

U.S. women's soccer would fit right in with NFL

RedEye

The U.S. women's soccer team has unveiled a number of pre-planned goal-scoring celebrations in the London Games. If this were the NFL, the Americans would answer to referees—or Roger Goodell. As it is, they risk only annoying their opponents.

"I wouldn't like it if our team did that," New Zealand coach Tony Readings said after the U.S. celebrated a goal with team somersaults in its win Friday. "It's something I guess [the Americans] work on in training. We try to work on scoring goals. We haven't got time to work on celebrations."

Lollapalooza 2012

WET & WILD

Chicago Tribune

Lollapalooza—which concluded three heat-baked, rain-soaked and increasingly mud-splattered days Sunday in Grant Park—had the attention-grabbling headliners, including most of the original Black Sabbath, the Black Keys and the Red Hot Chili Peppers.

It had gripping performances by rising stars Frank Ocean, the Weeknd and Passion Pit. It featured the biggest show yet by South Side hip-hop phenom Chief Keef. And it once again showcased the glittery domination of electronic dance music with overflow crowds for DJs such as Calvin Harris and Bassnectar.

But the eighth annual gathering of the musical nations, which drew a record-tying 270,000 fans to Grant Park, will always be most remembered as the evacuation festival.

Promoters and city officials pulled the plug on Saturday's parade of music about 3:30 p.m. and ordered the park evacuated in anticipation of a major storm rolling in from the west. More than 60,000 fans and 3,000 festival personnel left the area in less than an hour and filled city streets, hotel lobbies, restaurants and bars west of Michigan Avenue while waiting out the storm. The music eventually resumed more than three hours later in the now-swampy park; performances by a half-dozen bands, including the much-anticipated Alabama Shakes, were canceled, the schedule reconfigured and the park curfew ultimately extended by 45 minutes to 10:45 p.m.

A similar storm roared through Lollapalooza last year and the bands played on, notably a rain-drenched set by the Foo Fighters. But promoters this year erred on the side of caution in clearing out the park.

Saturday's storm left behind a mess of mud and stench-ridden puddles, mostly in the southern portion of the park in front of the main stage. Promoter C3 Presents will be faced with the clean-up bill (though will not make refunds to fans, a spokeswoman said), with the city in charge of logistics. All parties say they're aiming to have the park back in pristine shape more promptly than last year, when it took months to repair the damage left by the 2011 festival storms.

MORE FUN, LESS MUD

Lollapalooza's not over yet! Check out more photos, reviews and fashion at redeyechicago.com/lolla.

Lollapalooza's first-ever evacuation ran relatively smoothly, said city and concert officials, who kept a close eye on the fast-changing skies.

The evacuation order—announced while the sky was still bright—seemed sudden and overcautious to disappointed concertgoers. But it was the result of close to 24 hours of careful weather-watching by city, concert and National Weather Service officials. The city's emergency management office and the National Weather Service held a conference call Friday evening about the possibility of severe storms, initially expected Saturday evening, said Richard Castro of the National Weather Service in Romeoville.

Concertgoers were advised to leave Grant Park about 3:30 p.m. in announcements made from concert stages and on large screens around the park. The message also went out via social media.

Ian Kirchner, 18, of Atlanta, was watching Neon Indian perform when the set was cut short.

"They started lowering the LED screens, lowering the light setup," he said. "They started closing all the tents. Some of the staff members started going around telling everybody they had to get out."

Castro said winds in Grant Park during the storm likely reached 40 to 60 mph—strong enough to destroy temporary structures such as tents and stages—and said the storm included an unusual amount of lightning. "That's very dangerous for thousands of people in a park," he said. "When there's a lot of people, there's more people for the lightning to strike."

Steampunk to 'Saw': 4 new themed cruises

CNN

When you think of a cruise, what's the first thing that comes to mind? Lounging by the pool with a pina colada? Overindulging at the buffet? ... How about a spooky Halloween trip? Themed cruises offer alternatives to the traditional shuffleboard line-up. There's something for every kind of cruiser, as these four sailings attest:

Gay Halloween cruise

Celebration cruises, from $119/person

"For the gay community, Halloween is our Christmas," says Al and Chuck's Travel, the company behind the Gay Halloween Cruise. The three-day cruise leaves from Palm Beach, Florida, and will stop in Port Lucaya and Freeport, Bahamas, from Oct. 26-28. Festivities will include a Halloween dance party and costume contest. And there's still plenty of time to concoct one.

Steampunk Cruise and High Seas Ball

Royal Caribbean, starting at $889/person

The steampunk subculture got rolling in the 1980s, and soon became synonymous not only with science fiction and fantasy literature, but also metal gadgets, new technology and a whole lot of corset-wearing. Now the genre's enthusiasts can make it maritime, with the first-ever Steampunk Cruise and High Seas Ball sailing March 16-23, 2013.

Guests are invited to dress up for as many events as they wish, but save your steampunk-iest get-up for the Steampunk Duchess of Nola High Seas Ball.

The seven-day cruise will leave from New Orleans and stop in Grand Cayman, Jamaica and Cozumel. Guests can attend a Steampunk Film Festival and see a number of steampunk entertainers, including writer and puppeteer Mary Robinette Kowal, author Jay Lake and cellist Unwoman (Erica Mulkey).

Running cruise

Royal Caribbean, from $807/person, not including race registration fee

If you're looking for relaxation with a side of daily physical exercise on tropical terrain, look no further than running-themed cruises like the Caribbean Islands Half and Full Marathon Cruise. The cruise touts itself as a trip "with every type of runner and walker in mind." Guests run various distances each day at the ship's stops, and may complete either a full- or half-marathon distance by the week's end.

The ship leaves Feb. 17 from San Juan, Puerto Rico, and will include stops in Saint Thomas, St. Kitts, Curacao and Aruba, ending up back in San Juan on Feb. 24.

'Saw' at Sea

Carnival cruise line, starting at $779/person

Brave fans of the torture thriller "Saw" movie franchise can get up close and personal with the films' stars aboard Twisted Pictures' "Saw at Sea" cruise. You need to act fast if you want to be aboard this one. The ship sets sail Saturday from New York, and continues along the Canadian coast until Aug. 16, with stops in Saint John and Halifax. (The last six "Saw" movies were all filmed in Canada).

Actors Costas Mandylor, Anne Greene, Ned Bellamy, Dan Yeager (who was not in "Saw" but will be in the upcoming "Texas Chainsaw Massacre 3-D" movie), Rebecca Marshall and Mark Rolston will join the summer cruise and offer events like autograph signings, a question-and-answer session and photo ops. Guests can even catch a glimpse of the infamous "Saw" puppet, which will be lurking about.

Rhubarb goes from desserts to bottles

Chicago Tribune

We love the sweet-tart combination of strawberry and rhubarb warmed in a perfectly browned crust. But this summer, rhubarb spirits are the thing, as two newly released elixirs based on the fruity root vegetable land in liquor stores. They shared the same name until one asked the other to change, but they couldn't be more different.

The first, bottled by Philadelphia-based craft spirits maker Art in the Age, is the aptly named Rhubarb Tea, based on founder Steven Grasse's mother's summer tea.

"It's an old Shaker recipe she had," Grasse explains of the tea, which has flavors of beets, carrots, lemon, petitgrain, cardamom, coriander and pink peppercorn, and is sweetened with vanilla and cane sugar. "To me, summers were always about this very strange rhubarb tea my mom made, and I thought it would be interesting to make it into a spirit."

A history buff, Grasse discovered that Benjamin Franklin brought rhubarb to the States in 1771—the perfect anecdote to dovetail with Art in the Age's fondness for literal historic roots. Others in the portfolio include Root, based on an 18th-century root tea recipe, and Snap, which combines ginger root with blackstrap molasses. Unlike its mildly bitter counterparts, Rhubarb Tea is subtly savory with a sweet finish, and is smooth enough at 80 proof to drink on its own.

Though nationwide distribution didn't expand until this summer, Art in the Age introduced its rhubarb tea spirit a year ago, first in Pennsylvania and California (where it's distilled), with a label bearing a single word: Rhuby. The name has since been changed to honor a request from across the globe: another rhubarb spirit maker already had claimed it for her own.

Her name is Ylva Binder, the Swedish spirits guru who, for the past two decades, has held global marketing and brand director titles everywhere from Bacardi to William Grant & Sons. But over the past two years, she's been content to raise her toddlers and experiment with cooking and boiling rhubarb in her kitchen. She perfected her recipe—a blend of rhubarb and vanilla bean that sips like a sweet liqueur—then partnered with Sweden's 400-year-old Gripsholm distillery.

"(Rhubarb) is a very traditional, very popular ingredient here in Sweden," Binder says. "Everyone has rhubarb patches in their garden and makes it into a compote to serve with a crumble. ... It's such a strong flavor when you bite into it, but once you cook it, it mellows a lot." Binder says the goal for Rhuby, which lands stateside next month, was a spirit you could shake with ice and pour into a cocktail, or even champagne.

Next to Art in the Age's Rhubarb Tea, it's apples and oranges. "You can't really compare the two," Grasse says. Better to sip for yourself.

ROMANCE PLANET

BY JENNIFER SHEPHERD | READ MORE AT LIPSTICKMYSTIC.COM

Leo July 23-Aug. 22
Financial issues might be rearing their ugly head within your relationship. The moon says don't panic. Teamwork, creativity and communication will get you through this.

Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22
A flirtation that had fizzled might pick up steam again, thanks to Mercury. If you met somebody hot a few weeks ago, this is a good time to schedule a date. Or if you had an on-again, off-again fling, expect it to be on again.

Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23
Watch your words this week. A moon opposition could cause you to say something honest, but it turns out to be cruel. Avoid making your girlfriend cry just because you think that those jeans really DO make her look fat.

Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 21
The moon is filling your brain with disturbing fantasies. Maybe you should change your gender? Maybe you should enlist in the Army? Maybe you should quit your job and live in a treehouse? Maybe not. Don't make any sudden moves.

Sagittarius Nov. 22-Dec. 21
You know how you're famous for telling it like it is, and usually people just laugh? Well, that's not happening this week. Instead, the moon is stirring up potential miscommunication, hurt feelings and insults. Be kind.

Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19
This is a great week to invite some friends over or stage a big seduction scene for your lover. Pluto is helping you to overcome your sometimes crippling social phobia. You'll enjoy being in charge of a great event.

Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 18
You could surprise your partner as you turn all businesslike and serious. Saturn is encouraging you to arrange deals, enter into negotiations and sign contracts. If there's anything "legal" which needs to be settled in your relationship, do it now.

Pisces Feb. 19-March 20
Sometimes you make the whole love thing far too difficult. Venus is trying to show you that romance is meant to flow, not be something you have to orchestrate. Hang out with somebody special and enjoy your time together. It's that simple.

Aries March 21-April 19
Friends you don't really want to hang out with are suddenly pressuring you to get together. Pluto is showing that you've changed, and you have zero patience for people who are dumb, boring or reliving high school.

Taurus April 20-May 20
You could become attracted to someone who isn't your usual "type" but is truly adorable. Venus is kicking up some odd yet enticing flirtations. Be open to connecting with people who are genuine.

Gemini May 21-June 21
Mercury finally goes direct this week, ending a three-week migraine that has thrown off your sexual fun. At last, you'll manage to hook up with that cute guy you met months ago. Or you'll finally enjoy a romantic "date night" with your spouse.

Cancer June 22-July 22
You might want to take a break from an ongoing romance or travel to get away from your husband or wife. Venus is showing you that you need to figure out what's right for you.

ABOUT LAST NIGHT

Luis Gomez

lgomez@tribune.com
@aboutluisgomez

Before Zach Gilford and his fiancée, Kiele Sanchez, checked out the gift suites in the Hard Rock Hotel on Saturday, the self-deprecating "Friday Night Lights" star and Evanston native, who is currently filming Fox's "The Mob Doctor" in Chicago, politely excused himself from our conversation in the hotel's It's So Miami Oasis.

"Sorry," Gilford told me. "I need to go where myself out."

Gilford was one of the tons of celebrities in Chicago this weekend, most here to see or play the three-day Lollapalooza music festival in Grant Park.

And like several other boldface names, he took full advantage of his fame and the free swag that often comes with it.

Aaron Paul ("Breaking Bad") visited the gift suites Friday and walked away with a new Motorola phone before going to watch The Black Keys headline at Lollapalooza. Rapper B.o.B and actress Rose McGowan ("Charmed") picked up Motorola phones Saturday.

The Hard Rock Hotel's CK One-sponsored Rock The Vote Nights party Friday also featured celebrity guests, including "American Idol" alum Haley Reinhart, who performed at the party; E! fashion correspondent Kelly Osbourne, who sat in a guarded area of the VIP lounge, and actor Michael Pena ("Crash"), who talked to anyone who approached him.

Lollapalooza 2010 headliner Lady Gaga—rumored to be dating Taylor Kinney, who is currently filming "Chicago Fire" in the city—dined at Girl & the Goat on Friday.

Dave Chappelle watched rapper Talib Kweli DJ at The Shrine on Friday and then hung out at The Underground afterward. The former "Chappelle's Show" host, who was in Chicago to perform at the House of Blues on Sunday, returned to The Underground on Saturday with Kweli, who DJed the Rock The Vote Nights party earlier that night.

McGowan stopped by the party Saturday before briefly heading to Paris Club's upstairs lounge, Studio Paris—where Lollapalooza headliner Avicii was spinning—as well as The Underground and Board Room. She dined at Sunda earlier that night, while her "Scream" co-star, David Arquette, on hand for Lollapalooza for the third year in a row, opted for food at Paris Club. ### ALSO SPOTTED ...

■ Jenny McCarthy had dinner at RPM Italian on Saturday and braved the heat when she hung out earlier that day at the Gilt City-sponsored Better Than Backstage Rooftop Pool Party at the EnV Apartments, which featured a performance by Of Monsters and Men.

■ Lollapalooza founder and Jane's Addiction singer Perry Farrell dined at Nellco on Wednesday. I also spotted him Friday leaving Paris Club, clearly one of the biggest winners of the weekend, after Farrell had dinner there with his wife in a private room.

■ Jessica Szohr was spotted Saturday at Hub 51, the Rolling Stone Rock Room party at Studio Paris—which included a performance by Karmin—and The Underground.

■ I saw Food Network star Guy Fieri gladly posing for photos with patrons at Angels & Kings in the Hard Rock Hotel on Saturday afternoon.

■ Members of Passion Pit had dinner at N9NE Steakhouse on Thursday, and members of The Gaslight Anthem dined at Harry Caray's Italian Steakhouse on Saturday.

■ Bloc Party singer Kele Okereke DJed Saturday at Crimson Lounge in Hotel Sax.

First time seeing @DieAntwoord live today. They absolutely killed it ... insanity!!! #TotallyObsessed."

—Tweet from "True Blood" star Joe Manganiello, who had lunch Friday at Hub 51 before heading to Lolla. He also was spotted at Paris Club, Studio Paris, Hub 51 and RPM Italian this weekend.

The "Jersey Shore" star pulled in $11 million over the past year, landing him seventh on the list, just behind Deadmau5. Here are the Top 5.

1. Tiesto, $22 million
2. Skrillex, $15 million
3. Swedish House Mafia, $14 million
4. David Guetta, $13.5 million
5. Steve Aoki, $12 million

Quiet wedding

Natalie Portman has once again hit a milestone in her personal life with little fanfare, reportedly marrying her dancer fiancé, Benjamin Millepied, on Saturday. Portman and Millepied were wed before family and friends at a private home near Big Sur, Calif., usmagazine.com and people.com reported. After working together on the ballet drama "Black Swan," In December of 2010, they quietly announced they were engaged and expecting a child together. Their son, Aleph, is now 13 months old.

Skater life

Lil Wayne is putting down the mic and picking up a skateboard. "I believe my fans deserve some peace from me," Weezy said in an interview with DJ Drama, according to billboard.com. "I'll be on my skateboard in the meantime." First, though, Wayne plans to release a mixtape Aug. 15 that includes a remix of Chief Keef's "I Don't Like."

“ I am being considered to be a judge on American Idol, and it would be a dream come true if it happens.”
